DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. §103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-11, 17 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. §103(a) as being unpatentable over Kwon (US 2002/0175529) in view of Westrope (US 2238238).

Kwon (figures 3 and 4b) teaches a system for holding an accessory in the form of a handle to a sheet 10 including a clip 4 with first arms 40 bearing against one side of the sheet 10 that extend from the base, which contains a threaded aperture 48, and second arms 44 that alternate with the first arms 40 and have ends 45 that bear against the opposite side of the sheet 10. Note that the fastener can have symmetry about 120 degrees as indicated in col. 3, lines 46-50, so that the first and second arms would have portions opposite each other. The difference is that the first arms do not have ends that form channels so as to better grip the edge of the aperture. Westrope (figures 1, 5) teaches fastener structure wherein the arms form channels 19 so as to better engage the edges of the opening in the sheet. It would have been obvious to modify the ends of the first arms of the fastener of Kwon so that the ends of the first arms have folds to form channels in view of Westrope (figures 1, 5) teaching the arms forming channels 19 so as to better engage the edges of the opening in the sheet.

Claim 16 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. §103(a) as being unpatentable over Kwon (US 2002/0175529) in view of Westrope (US 2238238) as applied to claim 2 above, and further in view of Parkin et al. (US 3426817).

Further modification of the system of Kwon such that rather than the threaded opening 48, an outwardly bent portion of the base matching the thread of the screw is utilized would have been obvious in view of Parkin et al. (figures 4-6) who teach the use of an outwardly bent portion of the base in figures 4-5 as being a simpler alternative to the full threaded formation of figure 6.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments submitted in response to the prior Office Action have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In response to applicant's argument that the references fail to show certain features of applicant's invention, it is noted that the features upon which applicant relies (i.e., that there is no overlapping portions between the first and second arms) are not recited in the rejected claim(s). While it is agreed that there are differences between the configurations of the arms of applicant's disclosed device and that of Kwon, there are portions of the two sets of arms that don't overlap and are offset from each other. Applicant utilizes the open ended language "comprising" and therefore doesn't preclude added structure such as that shown by Kwon. The claims can be interpreted more broadly than applicant's argument. Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

Art Unit: 3677

Further, Westrope clearly suggests the use of a channels in the ends of the arms to more securely connect the fastener in place. This inherently provides added securement and positive fixing of the fastener and serves as suggestion to modify the teachings of Kwon.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 12-15 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
